

We had a meeting to discuss what we are doing next in our project. We've divided the work into three parts for now with each person being responsible for one section. After we are done with that we will put everything together to finalize our report for this project. For my part, I will be doing how technology plays a role in the forex system. I will explain how things like - Google's real-time forex rate graph changes with changing exchange rate and also if possible how it is done in the calculator on our phone.
